DETAILED ACTION

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 3 March 2003 has been entered.

Rejections Under 35 U.S.C. § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-5, and 13-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Loopstra et al(WO 99/28790) in view of Kawashima et al(5,117,254).

Loopstra et al teach an exposure apparatus comprising an exposure source(LA), mask(MA), projection lens system(PL), wafer substrate(W), and stage(WH). The exposure system includes a first sensor system(40-46) which controls the focus of the projection system by measurement the axial position of the substrate in relation to the projection lens system. A second sensor system includes an X-Y interferometer system (figure 4) which includes reflecting a beam from the stage (WH) and an inclined reflective surface (159) on the stage and a reflector (163) mounted to the projection optical system such that a second beam is reflected by the inclined reflector (159) to the mirror (163). See figures 5-8. Not taught is the use of a separate reference plate reflector mounted on the substrate stage.

Kawashima et al teach the use of a reference reflector mounted on the substrate stage of the exposure system with is used by the focus control (first sensor system). Kawashima further teaches that the reference reflector or the wafer surface can be used by the focus control.

FIG. 1

FIG. 5

FIG. 6

FIG. 7

FIG. 8

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include a reference reflector on the substrate stage for the first sensor system, the focus system, as taught by Kawashima et al. Clearly when the projection optical system is positioned over the reference reflector both the first and second sensor systems will be in a predetermined position.

With regard to claims 2, 3, and 17; while a position relationship is adjusted based on the positional information from the first and second sensors there is no means, element or structure to perform this claimed function. Thus the limitations are functional and do not further limit the claimed apparatus.

Claims 13-15, and 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Loopstra et al(WO 99/28790).

Claims 13-15 and 28 are method claims, the only limitation of each "exposing a substrate to at least one pattern image" which is met by the known prior art. Please note that the structure of the apparatus claim from which each method claim depends does not further limit and method claimed.

Reasons for Allowability

Claims 6, and 9-12 are allowed in view of the prior art of record.

These claims include a correction system which provides a positive structural limitation which links the position measuring system, moving system, and the correction system.
